She never could not find a way to tell His image the truth

There's simply nothing more she can give, she wants only to be free

No she's waiting for the end to come and to erase those last memories

She's falling in her grace and embracing the dark

When she felt she could not hold on in the middle of it all

A lonely soul trapped inside of her, there's nothing more she can give

She's staring up to see that face that could explain it all As memories they come and the mark that explains it all

She's falling in her grace, the mark explains it all

She's falling in her grace and embracing the dark

She's falling in her grace... like God's only child

The cross has lost it's grip on her soul there's nothing more she can give

Engravings on her skin and the mark that explains it all

She's falling in her grace and embracing the dark
