Your magnetizing colors are starting to fade
And you look as if you're tired from all the stars you've chased You've become attracted to a well-disguised escape Driving without headlights down a crowded interstate

William please comes home
It hurts too much to see you go William please just stop
You don't have to do this anymore you know?
William please comes home

Heaven sent an angel to hand you a new life
But you were dancing with the devil in the pail moonlight Steady for a moment and you caught a glimpse of the sun
But there were too many distractions and now your hour has come
