Unexpected, I'm rejected, This time you're alone again
From house to house but never home
I'd never expect you to understand
I never thought you'd dance with me
I never wasted a dance with you

Unintended, This time, more meaningless then ever
From house to house, but still alone
From house to house, from hell to home
Never ever, through and through
I'll never waste this dance on you

You'd never believe if you knew the real me
I'm not what you want; you're not what I need
So pack your bags to run away
The shattered glass just clears the way
Never ever, through and through
This dance I'll never dance with you

The brighter side of the darker line
The dumber side of the greater mind
A thousand unsaid wishes
And if you could take it all back, and if you could take it all...
You would run away with it all
I wish I had wasted that dance on you
