it's funny how they suckered us to proudly wear their logos try going to any high school and check the company clothes the training starts very early take a look at mom and dad they don't even know how to run from it chorus: they run our lives from a demographic chart they steal our souls from the very start and my addiction tries to make me buy it all death to the multinationals 2000 died in bhopal, india from a chemical leak union carbide cut their losses and saved their necks when the tanker exxon, exxon valdez wreaked havoc way up north exxon shares still held their worth chorus: i've had enough a millionaire jock tries to sell me shoes i can't jump that high the banks are set to keep our money they keep most of it the drug companies live like a bunch of junkies off pensioners money and my tiny voice they can stomp real fast chorus:
