Sittin' by the railroad station,
Thinking nothin' could go wrong,
He put his arms around,
He said "I'll love ya till you're...gone".

How come it never rains?
It only pours,
They fell into each other's eyes,
Is the right thing for sure?

Well into the bright lights,
The rain in the gutter's still the same,
Washing twice as many unhopeful hearts down the drain.

Well this town's ten times bigger than you are,
Ten million times as small,
One step in the wrong direction,
You can do nothing else but fall.

How come it never rains?
It only pours,
They fell into each other's eyes,
Is the right thing for sure?

How come it never rains?
It only pours,
They fell into each other's eyes,
Is the right thing for sure?

There was the first to fall, ohhh,
She always thought he was so strong,
Oh, it'll never be the same, yeah,
As that day in the pouring rain.

How come it never rains?
It only pours yeah,
They fell into each other's eyes,
Is the right thing for sure?

How come it never rains? Yeah-eah-eah-eah,

It only pours,
They fell into each other's eyes,
We can do nothing ever more.
