Our time has come
There once was a time for us
You cannot make it back
No matter how fast you react

This was our bond
We said we'd always play for keeps
No one takes it back
They always meant it when they asked

You never remembered why we were here
The places that we shared
And times when you weren't there
I picture you when we were friends

But I consider that when it rains, it pours
There's nothin' more, I won't take it out on you
But I'll remember when you went your own way
You felt so afraid, no one would follow you

Time is now your affluence
The aromatic bouquet of the flora
That those corporate types all love
A stage upon which you retort
Some chemicals in your bloodstream
Will never fill the void of being clean

You never remembered why we were here
The places that we shared
And times when you weren't there
I picture you when we were friends

I consider that when it rains, it pours
There's nothin' more, I won't take it out on you
But I'll remember when you went your own way
You felt so afraid, no one would follow you

Gone is the normalcy, last of the lost
I long for you now, forgive me somehow
As I am weary, I release the hate that caused the break
From taking it out on you

I will never disavow you're in my heart
I'm making it up to you
Confident we know the way
We will live again someday
I never said my last good bye
I'll always give you one last try
