

Dolly Parton "Looking Down"

Visit "Looking Down" on MotoLyrics.com

Duet by Dolly Parton and Porter Wagoner
Writer Porter Wagoner
Copyright 1972

[Both]

They say the love we steal is a disgrace
That we should be ashamed to look the world in the face
But they don't know how much love we must hide
While the world looks down upon our pride Seems there's always someone looking down down
down
Not knowing inner feelings of the ones they're puttin'
down
(The love we feel's as true as a baby's crying sound)
Still there's always someone looking down
We still honor the vows we made long ago
But when there's no love at home it hurts us so

And then your heart begins to look around
Love found us now the world's a looking down
Seems there's always someone...
The love we must keep silent hurts us now but love will always find a way somehow
Till then the world will look at us and frown
But we'll love each other while they're looking down
Seems there's always someone...
Seems there's always someone looking down

Visit Dolly Parton page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.