(Porter Wagoner & Dolly Parton)

Tonight all is quiet in Mission Chapel
And the music, like his love, has died away
And I'm standing in the middle of these memories
Mission Chapel memories of our wedding day
I see the rice still scattered all around
That veil upon my satin wedding gown
And the wedding bells that rang are silent now
Only Mission Chapel memories all around

Tonight I'm all alone at Mission Chapel
And I'm thinking of my love so far away

While I'm standing in the middle of all these memories
Mission Chapel memories of our wedding day

I see the rice still scattered all around
That veil upon my satin wedding gown
The gown I wore when I became his bride
And now these Mission Chapel memories fill my eyes
As these Mission Chapel memories fill my eyes
