It's a cliché to say I'm lonely in a crowd but every day
I'm more inclined to act it out I read the signs on every corner, they don't tell me what to do
It's a cliché to say I'm lonely but it's true, when every day, I feel so lonely without you It's a cliché to wear my heart upon my sleeve but every time you touch my hand I start to bleed
I ask the moon and the stars for answers
They don't tell me what to do
It's a cliché to say I'm lonely but it's true, when every

They don't tell me what to do
It's a cliché to say I'm lonely but it's true, when every
