We were never on a river, I was never in your car I've never spoken to your mother, never get your favorite talk Oh it's plain to see you're mistaken me for a man,??? broom???, some would say how
When you tell me everything I do, I do so well Can you loosen up the rope now, there's no feeling in my hands
I could use a glass of water if that won't upset your plans Oh it's plain to see that you're fantasies are going to wind you up in jail
When you tell me everything you do is bound to bale

I'm just trying to survive, she's crazy
And I want to see her die, I think that god will understand

If I promises not to leave you when you let me go outside
Just to whisper to the chaplain 'bout the voice stacked up inside
Oh you take your garbage and toss it out in the name of self defence
Than you tell me everything you do will soon make sense

I'm just trying to survive, she's crazy
And I want to stay alive, take a message to the closest living man

And do you hear the devil laughing when you're talking to yourself
Do you hear the angels???, clocking???, just for you and no-one else
Oh inside you see how a man like me can escape this living hell
When you tell me everything I do, I do so well
Then I tell you everything you do, you do so well
