An old song on the radio, a faded dream from long ago

A phone is ringin' but the message can't get through

A whisper on the wind as the sun goes down

A teardrop crashes to the ground and That's the sound that a heart makes when a heart
breaks

That's the sound that a heart makes when a heart
breaks
Two people cryin' over broken vows

A door slams shut on an empty house

It echoes on down where the well is runnin' dry

Words lost in sentences we can't understand

A ring is slippin' off my fingers and slippin' through my hands, and
breaks

breaks
Blue notes on an old guitar, the silent fire of a distant star

The unforgiving rhythm of November rain,

Rivers that are runnin' down a broken windowpane
GUITAR SOLO
That's the sound that a heart makes when a heart
breaks

breaks

breaks

That's the sound that a heart makes when a heart
breaks
