Miles of highway between me and my home
I think about you, when it rains and I'm alone
Another day, another memory, the sun disappears
Another morning without you and I cry another tear

What I want might not make me happy
What I do might bury me
What I'm chasing might not ever happen
And it might not set me free

Anything you decide to take for granted
Is just the same as letting go
The hardest thing you'll ever do is find you something That makes you happy and knowing how and when to hold on

It's taken so long to get where I am
And I've got a long way to get where I wanna stand Sometimes I'm crazy for the things that I believe Have I done the best I can, is this the best that I can be?

What I want might not make me happy
What I do might bury me
What I'm chasing might not ever happen
And it might not set me free

Anything you decide to take for granted
Is just the same as letting go
The hardest thing you'll ever do, is find you something
That makes you happy and knowing how to never let it go
