Worth The Wait

She put on her blue black velvet dress looking hard to resist
It's been years without a reason for dressing up like this
He's gonna pick her up tonight at seven in his pale blue classic car
He's gonna bring all the loving that she's been needing Wrapped in a warm but gentle heart.

And oh it took such a long time
But she never lost faith
On and on she kept believing
It was worth the wait

Tired of all the cowboy hangouts
She did every one in this lowdown lonesome town
Never could find just what she'd been needing Cause it wasn't in that crowd
Then late one night in the middle of a heartache
Staring there in her seat
There he stood just like old Prince Charming
And he swept her off her feet

And oh it took such a long time
But she never lost faith
On and on she kept believing
It was worth the wait

He brought her a heart so full of devotion
He showed her the way that she could live again
And laugh again
And love again

And oh it took such a long time
But she never lost faith
On and on she just kept believing
It was worth the wait It was worth the wait
