Jerry Lynn Williams

Day by day I'm lost for words to say
I try and speak but the words won't come

You and I should take these wings and fly
It's time to ring every bell and beat on every drum

Cause our love can take us where we've never been
And our love can build this world again
Build this world

What we need is just a little love and we'll succeed
The time has come for everyone to know
That you and I we're all the reasons why
He taught the birds to sing and made the flowers grow

And our love can take us where we've never been
And our love can build this world again
Build this world

The time has come for everyone to know
He taught the birds to sing and made the flowers grow

And our love can take us where we've never been
And our love can build this world again
Build this world

Day by day I'm lost for words to say
I try and speak but the words won't come

So you and I should take these wings and fly
It's time to ring every bell and beat on every drum
Tell the world about it

Our love can take us where we've never been
And our love can build this world again
Build this world
