For a moment I believe,
once you came you'll never leave, now like that is not enough for me.
You got the trackmarks of the trade, Every promise that you made, swear that it would be the last for me.

Does it give you a rush? To think that I want you so much?

Said you were back to stay,
I should have known better now your half the way to California,
Now i'm curled up on your side of the bed thinking about things you never said
I would have followed you to California

Smokin like a cigarette, said that this won't hurt a bit but you lied because it burns and it burns.
Thanks a lot for leaving town,
I'm so high I can't calm down, Makes me wonder if I'll ever learn

Don't it give you a rush to think that I want you so much?

Said you were back to stay,
I should have known better now your half the way to California,
Now i'm curled up on your side of the bed
thinking about things you never said
I would have followed you to California

Do you come back cause you can? I'm just waiting for a ghost of a man?

Does it give you a rush? To think that I want you so much?

Said you were back to stay,
I should have known better now your half the way to California,

Now i'm curled up on your side of the bed thinking bought things you never said I would have followed you to California

Said you were back to stay,
I should have known better now your half the way to California,
Now i'm curled up on your side of the bed thinking bought things you never said
I would have followed you to California
