Looking down that long road
She relieves me the memories
Wishing he had stayed
And he never said goodbye

Lately she's been missing
All the nights he held her
The music slowly takes her heart
To another place in time

And she dances with her shadow
Staring out the window
A silver moon silhouette
Shining in her eyes

In her heart she knows that
He will never come back
She dances with her shadow
Alone once tonight

He was fast and reckless
No way she could hold him
Loved her like no other
Had ever done before

Some nights you can find her
Going through the motions
Broken dreams and photographs
All scattered on the floor

And she dances with her shadow
Staring out the window
A silver moon silhouette
Shining in her eyes

In her heart she knows that
He will never come back
She dances with her shadow
Alone once tonight

She dances with her shadow again tonight
