(Hazel Smith)

There's no doubt about it love ain't the question
And love ain't the answer to what's coming down
With more than enough to hold most folks together
We've lost more than average folks ever have found

We can't kiss and make up, make love and take up
Somewhere where we left off, somewhere where we've been
Cause love ain't the question and love ain't the answer
From the beginning it was destined to end

No love ain't the question and love ain't the answer
For two head-strong people too set in our ways
We can't stay apart and we can't stay together
A couple of misfits that love cannot save

We've got love for giving and got love for taking
But there's no forgiving, there's no giving in
So love ain't the question and love ain't the answer
From the beginning it was destined to end

Cause love ain't the question and love ain't the answer
From the beginning it was destined to end
