[Instrumental]

[Storyline from the booklet]

Time, 2238 A.D.

Place, inside the Armageddon Machine

While the world around him stands terrified, and incapable of understanding the aliens' purposes. Hal finds himself inside the belly of the beast. The gargantuan ship seems to be even bigger from the inside than on the outside. Unable to move, he is transported through an array of metal pistons moving incessantly and finally attached to a strange but comfortable chair. Two alien figures stand before him. Their shapes are blindingly bright. As soon as they start talking, his mind starts to wander. Memories are awakened after centuries of sleep. His conscience starts drifting back in time to different places. Different lives.
