Could have been anyone could have been a woman or a man
Must have swept her away made her forget who I am
Could have been anyone could have slipped me a drug Must have been a permanent dose to make me forget who she was

Could have been anything could have been the time we spent alone
Maybe too much time together maybe too close to the bone
Could have been anything any word I might have said Just a look I might have given just the angle of my head, I forget

We come we go, we say we know
We don't remember we don't remind each other
We come we go, we say we know
We don't remember, don't recognize each other

It could have been anyone any rumor passed around Someone made her doubt me made her head for higher ground
Could have been any gesture or word Could have been something I misstated something She misunderstood, I would

We come we go, we say we know
We don't remember we don't remind each other
We come we go, we say we know
We don't remember, don't recognize each other

Maybe this time things might work out right Maybe this time she might catch my eye Maybe something, something, anything could strike me blind
I might remember her and she might remember me this time

Could have been anyone anything the ring around her finger Could have been anything any piece shattered on the way

Could have been anything anyone she'll take another lover
Could have been anything, anything, anything, anything

We come we go, we say we know
We don't remember we don't remember
We come we go, we say we know
We don't remember, don't recognize each other

We come we go, we say we know
We don't remember we don't remember
We come we go, we say we know
We don't remember, don't recognize each other
