A new reflection of the man,
I was dead when you left,
This slow burning spark continues,
I saw the crash in my head.

And as the roof is coming down,
To bring this story to a close,
I saw the crash, [I saw the crash]
Crash in my head

It's not like you
To give up so quickly.

They can say it was an accident,
The way we waited just to sit and watch it all,
But what was I to do?
Our silence claims you

Understanding of just what it meant
To put the left blinker on,
And coast til the gears release you.
I saw the crash, in my head.

And mark the seconds with the lines,
White and yellow on the road.
I saw the crash, [I saw the crash]
Crash in my head

It's not like you
To give up so quickly.

[x2]
They can say it was an accident,
The way we waited just to sit and watch it all,
But what was I to do?
Our silence claims you!

Time...
And machines on standby counting seconds,
Time it takes to fly away...

Tie...
Tie my hands,
This fate,
This sky,
Put to rest this long goodbye.

They can say it was an accident,
They can say it was an accident.
The way we waited just to sit and watch it all...

[x2]
They can say it was an accident,
The way we waited just to sit and watch it all,
But what was I to do?
Our silence claims you!

I've had enough of my head...
