ALMA DE BARRO (Marie Claire D'Ubaldo) Esta tierra te dÃfÃo un sueÃfÃ±o en el pasado fue hace tiempo fue cuando aÃfÃn no cabia el miedo y ese sueÃfÃ±o un dÃfÃa se vÃfÃo desangrado De otros mares, vinieron con mascararas de dioses se ocultaron detrÃfÃis de la avaricia y el derroche fue un engaÃfÃ±o a tu fragilidad y tu inocencia todavÃfÃa se escucha tu llanto en la lejanÃfÃa (en la lejanÃfÃa)
Alma de barro, piel de color marrÃfÃ³n
no pudiste elegir
alma de barro, piel de color marrÃfÃ³n no pudiste elegir, no te dejaron elegir Y pensar que este suelo fue tu morada y una lÃfÃgrima, pues no puedo entender porque pasarÃfÃa, lo que pasarÃfÃa Alma de barro, piel de color marrÃfÃ³n
no pudiste elegir
alma de barro, piel de color marrÃfÃ³n no pudiste elegir, no te dejaron vivir Hoy mÃfÃs raices quieren la historia fiel (quieren la historia fiel) Alma de barro vive tu canto en mÃfÃ, tu canto vive en mÃfÃ (tu canto vive en mÃfÃ)

"Alma De Barro": This song, quite hard to translate, talks about the indigenous natives before colonization. They had dreams, they were proud. But from another sea came a different people with (what the natives thought they were) "masks of gods", and suddenly they knew fright and pain. They lost their dreams and they couldn't chose their future. A lot of that culture was lost. But there's an essence that is always there; it comes to life at different times and in different ways. Sometimes with words that we use today from that old and wise language,

and sometimes when we hear a "quena" or a "sikus", carried on the wind... coming from the mountains in the Andes... telling us it will never go, it will stay forever, like a ghost from another life.
