I hope to hell that you've thought about what you've done
'Cause every war you fought was only for your ego and your pride
I prayed for you to be forgiven by everyone And every word you hurled would always turn to violence in your eyes

It seems too far for us to go
And we will hunt you down

What if I told you to read between the lies
And I was never really by your side
What if I told you I've felt it for a while
And I was never really, and I was never really in your life

Forgive me God for everything that I've become But then again we men are penned the same as you and your design
I'm sorry Lord that I don't believe in you It's time to rise outside the lines that tie us to this ageing lie

It seems too far for us to go
And we will hunt you down

What if I told you to read between the lies
And I was never really by your side
What if I told you I've felt it for a while
And I was never really, and I was never really in your

You were never real
And I will never follow
You were never real
I will never follow you
And I was never really

What if I told you to read between the lies
And I was never really by your side
What if I told you I've felt it for a while

And I was never really, I was never really in your life
