

Duff Mckagan's Loaded

"She's An Anchor"

Visit "She's An Anchor" on MotoLyrics.com

Saw the tears run down your face, Guess we saw the signs too late,
Now the wind is gone, you're drifting all alone,

Lift my anchor from your sea,
That vast tranquility,
I was overcome and blinded by the years,

Placing blame and, hiding all the things that shame
them, Fading, hating, you'll never stop this heart from bleeding,

Set my sights on foreign shores,
Woke up there wanting more,
Never saw myself as one to float away,

Placing blame and, hiding all the things that shame
them,
Fading, hating, you'll never stop this heart from
bleeding,

You only need me when you're drunk and dirty,
You only use me when you feel alone,
You did my drugs and then you take my money,
I'm leaving, you're on your own,

Yeah yeah, you're on your own now, yeah yeah, you're
all alone yeah,
Yeah yeah, you're on your own now, yeah yeah, you're
all alone yeah,

Placing blame and, hiding all the things that shame
them,
Fading, hating, you'll never stop this heart from
bleeding,
[repeat]

