In the aftermath
As catch as catch can
I used to think I was
A stronger man

I hoped for the best
But now I seem to deal
With glimmers and shreds
An all the other things
I should've done instead

When I praised to you
I felt upon deaf ears
So I ran to you
And tasted such sweet tears
I will ask of you
To say what's on your mind
I pray that you will find
That You'll find a way
You'll find a way to believe in me

In the aftermath
What's done is done, it's past
So late, but now I know
What I want at last

In these hours, these days I must wait
I look for more than lessons learned and prices paid
I can't ask of you to try change your mind
I pray that you will find, you will find a way
You'll find a way to believe in me

In the aftermath
A promise made with silver and blue
All that I can give, I'll give to you
