You're everything you need and so you fight
You take them on your own until you die
The wisdom in your breath comes much too late
And everyone you see just gets a face
In time, the words will come, they say, with faith
But everything you see just turns you gray

You're everything you need
But still suspicion holds you tight
You're everything you need
But still suspicion holds you tight

No mind or cares, decisions must be made
Who's side who's on, the question should be saved
Your purpose comes and nothings left in sight
And it's clear they sing, that nothing here feels right
Now everyone's afraid 'cos no one moves
Not told anything, but anything to you

You're everything you need
But still suspicion holds you tight
You're everything you need
But still suspicion holds you tight

The righteous come and bleed you from the goal
It's only ever wanted from your soul
Then every man intentions are no more
And it's all you'll ever get if you let go

You're everything you need
But still suspicion holds you tight
You're everything you need
But still suspicion holds you tight

You're everything you need
But still suspicion holds you tight
You're everything you need
But still suspicion holds you tight
