Mama preached to me, boy be a kid just as long as you can
But I was hell-bent and bound and determined to be my old man
I was ready to drive and I wanted a job Hungry to chase my dreams Way back when I was twelve years old going on eighteen

Those four years of college I stretched into six and a half
If I woke up in time after parties you'd catch me in class Well, I moved back home, stayed out, slept in Till one Monday morning I heard Daddy scream You're twenty-four years old boy, still going on eighteen

Hey, all I'm dying to do is to live Just tryin' to take what the day has to give Everyone wants but they don't always get what's expected of me

They say act your age, don't break no mold
Be young when you're young and old when you're old They say I'm in the prime of my life, hell if I know what that means
In the back of my mind I'm still going on eighteen

Got the wife, got the kids, got the job, got the cars and the house
Well in life's little rulebook it falls under all settled down
But give a handful of friends, a handful drinks
It's like riding a time machine, yeah A bunch of thirty something year old guys going on eighteen

Hey, all I'm dying to do is to live
Just tryin' to take what the day has to give Everyone wants but they don't always get what's
expected of me

They say, "Act your age, don't break no mold"
Be young when you're young and old when you're old
They say I'm in the prime of my life, hell if I know what
that means
In the back of my mind I'm still going on eighteen

Now I preach to my boy be a kid just as long as you can But he's hell-bent and bound and determined to be his old man
