I once knew a man who had his whole world in little bags he took them out, and every night he made sure that he felt alive, well rest assured he don't come around here anymore I use to think I'd never be but now it seems that he is me

And we all know
the story goes
we toss and turn and every night, just feel like giving up the fight and I

I need a little more room to breathe I never thought I could be 21 and say that I'm still

I once knew a girl who was so caught in her own world she used the drug that she called love it was everything she was dreaming of until one day her love got up and walked away what use to be security just ended her reality

And we all know
the story goes

could be 21 and say that I'm still waiting now

Don't worry because before long, well everything that's right will soon be wrong

So, tell me there's more to my whole life than finding ways to stay alive I know that I can't be as desperate as I seem
