I see you walking everyday,
I see your face captured in gray,
I always thought that it would all turn out okay.
Okay, okay,
Well I can't tell the future but I might not be in it,
But that's so cliché.

So live it like you mean it,
And never take it back.
Act like you've never seen it,
Or forgotten words you lack.

I'll wear my heart out on my sleeve,
Even though my friends are make believe,
Maybe someday you'll understand what I can't perceive.
And please don't leave,
So I can feel some clarity, and finally rest in peace,
The sand and the sieve.

So live it like you mean it,
And never take it back.
Act like you've never seen it,
Or forgotten words you lack.

I'll wear my name out on my sleeve,
For everyone who does not believe,
In me, but I can't see the future,
So I don't know what it might hold.
But we're taking it slowly as it comes.
