As I wake up in the morning, with a sour and aching head
Then I see her there beside me, sleeping tightly in her bed
And I have to wake her and ask her if she's mine
And she says: - Baby I will love you 'til the end of time

Late at night and I'm not sober and I stumble to my bed
And ask her if it's over, she just smiles and shakes her
And she kisses me and tells me: - By tomorrow you'll be fine
And she says: - Baby I will love you 'til the end of time

Can't believe what I've heard She's more than I deserve What have I done to be loved, by the most gorgeous woman in the world?

She'll never be untrue, 'cause she knows what I've been through
And I always love her 'til the end of time

SOLO

Sometimes I just have to wake her and ask her if she's mine
And she says: - Baby I will love you 'til the end of time
She says: - Babyyyy, I will love you 'til the end of time
