"I Love Her"

The mansion that I've promised her is still a dream somewhere back in my mind Someday she's gonna have it if I live that long if God give me the time Although I haven't given her the things she might have gotten from another Oh never once till she complains her faith in me remains the same
And I love her

The day when our first baby came we both cried and felt the pain together I passed around the cheap cigars and braged a lot about our newborn daughter Now she's growing up and she's a sweet and loving image of her mother Who gives me strenght to make each day and says I know you'll find the way
And I love her
When the world is walked away she's the one who always stays beside me Giving all the love she can reaching out with gentle hands to guide me
In another month or two we hope to give our little girl a brother
Without her I could never be the kind of man she sees in me
And I love her and I love her
