I'm foolish, I'm silly,
I'm absolutely daft
As a sailor on a sea of love,
I don't know half of half

Admit it, I'll have to almost without defence
And here's the proof
I'm a silly goof
without a grain of common sense

I nearly let love go slipping through my fingers
Oh yes, I did, I know I did
My happiness too was slipping through my fingers
Like golden sand, right through my hand

But I woke in time
And I saved my prize
Yet though love is mine,
I tremble when I realise

I nearly let love go slipping through my fingers
Oh yes I did, foolishly
For without love where in this world would I be
For without love Where in this world would I be
