Your eyes speak in volumes, child
The longings that you keep
I know you're suffering
You needn't say a thing
I need no warning here
I need no sign

That you're gone
I know it
You're already gone
I know it, I know it

You're too young to look this old
Just let go this weight
Love should not drag you down
Or beg you to stay
No, baby, I need no warning here
I need no sign
That you're gone
I know it
You're already gone
I know it, I know it

I need no warning here
I need no sign
That you're gone
I know it
You're already gone
I know it

You sit alone in your car, I know it
You lie awake in the dark, I know it
You're too tired to fight, I know it
You don't know when you're right
You're already gone, I know it
You're already gone, I know it,
I know it
