Sometimes I wish you would die just to see how it would feel to drown in an ocean of the pity I feel for myself and the words that escape me

Sometimes car goes too fast and the breaks doing all that they can and the rain unforgiving as it tenderly falls on your breast and a windshield colliding
on your breast and a windshield colliding

Sometimes the phone doesn't ring and then when you never expect with the voice of a mother as it wavered and cracked with wishes of get to know better

just to see how I would look by the ambulance light with a grief stricken face and the thought that we've never been closer
and the thought that we've never been closer
