if it starts to feel,
then we'll just shut it off again,
we wont convince the jury,
we're guilty til we die.

if it starts to sing.we can remove the siren,
this respirator keeps a countdown to our cancellation.
if it starts to bleed. do not adjust the contrast.
dr. deliver us. this heaven holds no truth.
for dreamers like you and i remember the day we cut our throats.

we learned to smile from our necks.
this is the breach of etiquette.
with wires jutting out from arms.
i'll never lookat you again.
if it's only a mirror in the end.
and if there's no one after us.
we'll turn the lights out when we leave.

i'll never look at you again if it's only a mirror.
we're guilty til we die.
'll never lookat you again.

syphon the ivory from the tusks we're guilty til we die.
we only bleed when the knives are drawn.
vultures pick the meat from bones.
we're guilty til we die.
we only love when the camera's on.

if it starts to feel then we'll just shut it off again.
we wont convince the jury. we're guilty til we die.

do not adjust the contrast.
my love our days are numbered.
we'll remain guilty til our hearts give in and pull us under.

we left our corpses on the beach.
untouched and slightly out of reach.
we paint the walls with our dreams.
