In a dream I spent a day with you
In a carriage bought by blood
The clouds were singing songs of fear and loss
And they cut me down to size
And they cut me down to size

Broken wings have a home tonight
No one is listening, no one is listening
When darkness fell on the streets last night
We never expected, we never expected this

In a perfect world, I'd never know your name
And do we even know it when we die
Or will death just pass us by?
Will death just pass us by?
Please just pass us by

Broken wings have a home tonight
No one is listening, no one is listening
When darkness fell on the streets last night
We never expected, we never expected this

When all this pain is justified
While all the time is passing by
Now is when we clench our fists
Knowing we can fight through this

The hours and the days are gone
The weeks and months are moving on
Can't they see that nothing's
Gonna stop us now?

Broken wings have a home tonight
No one is listening, no one is listening
When darkness fell on the streets last night
We never expected, we never expected this

When all this pain is justified
While all the time is passing by
Now is when we clench our fists
Knowing we can fight through this

Broken wings have a home tonight
No one is listening, no one is listening
When darkness fell on the streets last night
We never expected, we never expected this

The hours and the days are gone
The weeks and months are moving on
Can't you see that nothing's
Gonna stop us now?

We never expected this
We never expected this
