She is gone, seventeen
And her son, just turned three
Lives off of society and contempt
Feeds her son pays the rent

And I wonder who's to blame
And I wonder who's to blame

Daddy loves his little girl
She's his pride, his joy, & his world
But they took her from his life
She's been missing since July

And I wonder who's to blame
And I wonder who's to blame

He takes a promise that he'll lead the way
Finally to stay tomorrow
Shine a light upon virgin roads to peace
Where no one dares to go
Let's come together all as one
For to change this road that we're on There's an answer it's called love

But we nailed it to the cross, along time ago

And I wonder who's to blame
And I wonder who's to blame
And I wonder wonder who's to blame
And I wonder who's to blame

For the suffering of the children
For the lying and the killing
Who's to blame

For the hurting and the sorrow
And a hopeless tomorrow
Tell me who's to blame

I know we can make it better
We can always come together
Cause there's evil everywhere

And it's much more than I can bear
There's a cross that we can carry
And a burden we can bare
Still it all remains the same
Somebody tell be who's to blame
Who's to blame
