A lie to say, "O my mountain has coal veins and beds to dig.

500 men with axes and they all dig for me." A lie to ssay, "O my river where mant fish do swim, half of the catch is mine when you haul your nets in." Never will he believe that his greed is a blinding ray. No devil or redeemer will cheat him. He'll take his gold to where he's lying cold.

A lie to say, "O my mine gave a diamond as big as a fist."

But with every gem in his pocket, the jewels he has missed. A lie to say, "O my garden is growing taller by the day." He only eats the best and tosses the rest away. Never will he be believe that his greed is a blinding ray. No devil or redeemer can cheat

him. he'll take his gold to where he's lying cold. Six deep in the grave.

Something is out of reach

something he wanted

he's being taunted

that he can' beg or steal nor can he buy

his oldest pain

and fear in life

there'll not be time

his oldest pain

A lie to say "O my forest has trees that block the sun and when I cut them down I don't answer to anyone." No, no, never will he

believe that his greed is a blinding ray no devil or redeemer can

cheat

him. He'll take his gold where he's lying cold
