waking up on sunday morning everything is in its place people skirting past my window i could never keep the pace somewhere near a phone is ringing no one's there to take the call i can hear the cellos singing don't know what tomorrow's bringing i don't mind at all

i'm so distracted
the simple fact is i need to practice letting go
i'm so distracted
the simple fact is
i'm too attracted by the glow distracted, distracted...

i remember things once were different a long, long time ago i remember laughing at the little things i used to know i would leave the outside world behind me if i only could if i could keep myself together realize that things were better it would do me good

i'm so distracted
the simple fact is
i'm so distracted
the simple fact is
i'm too attracted by the glow
distracted, distracted...

you never feel it in a cartoon bubble you better make that drink a double there you go, you're gone, you're gone

i'm so distracted
the simple fact is
i'm so distracted
the simple fact is
i'm too attracted by the glow
distracted, distracted...
