(Verse 1)

Sifting through old memories, of better days, when you were mine.

And all those things that I couldn't say, I never found a way, to describe.

The way you left, well it hurt so bad, and it makes me sad to think about.

If I could change anything, I would change everything to make it right... yeah.

(Chorus)

But it's a little too late to save this.

The girl is gone, yeah; I might as well face it.

It's hard to swallow, but we just couldn't make it.

And now it's over, now it's over.

It's a little too late to save this.

The girl is gone, yeah; you might as well face it.

It's hard to swallow, but we just couldn't make it.

And now it's over, now it's over.

(Verse 2)

You left your ring on the dresser drawer.

I guess you don't need it anymore since you're gone.

I hope you find what you're looking for.

You always wanted more, than I could provide, yeah.

(Chorus)

But it's a little too late to save this.

The girl is gone, yeah; I might as well face it.

It's hard to swallow, but we just couldn't make it.

And now it's over, now it's over.

It's a little too late to save this.

The girl is gone, yeah; you might as well face it.

It's hard to swallow, but we just couldn't make it.

And now it's over, now it's over.

(Bridge)

By now I'm sure that you're on the coast.

You've found that what you wanted most, it all was a lie! Was a lie! Was a lie, lie, lie!

(Chorus)

But it's a little too late to save this.
The girl is gone, yeah; I might as well face it.
It's hard to swallow, but we just couldn't make it.
And now it's over, now it's over.
It's a little too late to save this.
The girl is gone, yeah; you might as well face it.
It's hard to swallow, but we just couldn't make it.
And now it's over, now it's over.
