when you were a bird i built a nest of straw for you listened to you sing in the morning dawn you would fly to spain just to see the countryside used to run below just to watch you fly icy hands will never melt away i keep knock-knockin' on your door (knock knock knock)

you were always changing your shape now you're not a bird anymore when you were a frog i built a special pond for you listened to you croakin' on the summer nights you would swim around and rest in the tall grass used to look for you but you would always hide

i keep knock-knockin' on your door (knock knock knock)
now you're not a frog anymore when you were an eel we would swim around a lot splish and splash about with the changing tides you would light the way when it got too dark at night used to get shocked but i didn't mind

i keep knock-knockin' on your door (knock knock knock)
now you're not an eel anymore
