Your life it ends with a crash, it's over now way too fast
You never knew that it was so short

Diggin' deep inside yourself
You never knew your own wealth
You're digging deep to find some pity

Fake all your promises
Forget what your conscience says
Just another number
In a long line of no one

Just pretending that we're ending
Hating what we are
So frustrated, suffocated
How did we get this far?

Your life begins way too fast
You can never change your past
Livin' life in your yesterday

Diggin' deep inside yourself
You never knew your own wealth
You're digging deep to find some pity

Fake all your promises
Forget what your conscience says
Just another number
In a long line of no one

Just pretending that we're ending
Hating what we are
So frustrated, suffocated
How did we get this far?

Are we really that far that we can't even see
All the truth from the lies in this man made disease
That is killing us and is filling us
Willing us to believe

That we'll always be

Just pretending that we're ending
Hating what we are
So frustrated, suffocated
How did we get this far?

Looking up and breaking down
You never know what's to go down
(How did we get this, how did we get this?)
Reaching inside myself
I'll never know anything else
(How did we get this far?)
