The first incision is made.

The knives start to tear your skin.

The blood drips at the end of the blade and you can't go back.

You started to change your life.

Why don't you love yourself?

Your infinite beauty disappears.

You will never really see your true self in the mirror

Until you see yourself in someone else eyes.

You can smash the glass, cut yourself, change the pieces

But don't you know your heart will stop someday?
