

Elliot Minor

"Song For Festivity"

Visit "Song For Festivity" on MotoLyrics.com

Hear me crying "How could you?"
Broken glass is shed across the floor.
I'll tell you now what I told you once before
I'll be there for you.

I sit alone and wonder why,
What happened here tonight,
Just a moment in disguise.
I lift my head up to the sky,
It hurts me everytime,
An illusion of the mind.

Dancing around,
Sitting on your own.
Needless to say,
We should've known.

Hear me crying "How could you?"
Broken glass is shed across the floor.
I'll tell you now what I told you once before,
I'll be there for you.

And when there's nothing left for me to say,
We're going different ways,
There's nothing good left in this place.
And when you feel you're out of luck,
The growing fact she stood you up again.
I'm left out in the cold.

Dancing around,
Or sitting on your own.
Needless to say,
We should've known.

Hear me crying "How could you?"
Broken glass is shed across the floor.
I'll tell you now what I told you once before,
I'll be there for you.

I've been standing in the snow,
Breathing in the cold,

And I just can't forget about, forget about
This old promise that you made,
But everything is changing now.

Standing in the snow,
Breathing in the cold,
And I just can't forget about, forget about
This old promise that you made,
But everything is changing now.

Hear me crying "How could you?"
Broken glass is shed across the floor.
I'll tell you now what I told you once before,
I'll be there for you.

Hear me crying "How could you?"
Broken glass is shed across the floor.
I'll tell you now what I told you once before,
I'll be there for you,
I'll be there for you.

Visit Elliot Minor page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.