She moved to the west
Out of the east
Three years a widow
And two kids to feed
Back breaking days
And hard breaking nights
Left her so tired
And lonely inside
Driven by dreams
And endless hope
She packed all the bags
And she took to the road

Somewhere out there
Someone will know
And answer her prayers
On the Canada coast
On the Canada coast

Out of the prairie
Into the town
A calgary drifter
Came looking around
Searching for something
He'd never found
He led his eyes on her
There was no looking down
She gave her heart
He took her soul
Prayers had been answered on Canada's coast
On the Canada coast

And she watched the wind blow
And the waves on the blue ocean flow
On the Canada coast

He stayed for the winter
Left in the spring
Vancouver city was fencing him in
She knew drifter's go
But chose to pretend
And hoped in her heart

It was love without end

Somewhere out there
Someone will know
And answer her prayers
On the Canada coast
On the Canada coast

And she watched the wind blow
And the waves just like tears
Flow and flow
On the Canada coast
Tears flow and flow
On the Canada coast.
