I'm no longer counting, I'm not keeping score
I could say my list of lovers doesn't matter anymore
But some are always in my heart and some I'm not so sure Either way they all left their mark and for some I found a cure

And from one you learn something, another you learn nothing
And there's one who might teach you everything
But before I learned to listen if indeed someone said it
Then I guess I must have lost it on the wind

Back when I was younger each one was a prize Love just came along and hit you right between the eyes
And one was just a trophy catch, and one was like a curse
Some would want to bleed you dry, some might quench your thirst

And from one you learn something, another you learn
nothing
And there's one who might teach you everything
But before I learned to listen and if indeed someone said it

And from one you learn something, another you learn
nothing
And there's one who might teach you everything
But before I learned to listen and if indeed someone
said it
Then I guess I must have lost it on the wind

In cold water I went fishing, in warm seas I cast a line And swore the heart I was reeling in was perfect at the time
You couldn't tell me I were wrong, you couldn't tell me anything
And if you did then I guess I must have lost it on the wind

And if you did then I guess I must have lost it on the

And if you did then I guess I must have lost it on the

And if you did then I guess I must have lost it on the
