Take away the center flowers
Cover up the sky of blue
Close my ears to tender love songs
They remind me too much of you

Hide young lovers worm embraces
Keep stars and moonlight from my view
Let me forget there are such places
They remind me too much of you.

Must I evermore be haunted
Day after day, my whole life through
By the memory of each moment
That I spent alone with you.

If these lovely things don't hurt you,
Our love just wasn't meant to be,
But please come back to me my darling,
If they remind you too much of me
