Far away from somewhere i'd like to call it close to you the problem is ive finally found a reason im hoping that your safe now now that you've found your way out truth is the silence cant speak for you theres to much to say but words arent enough to speak for you cant forget all these things that you know this is the day of your reckoning (pray for your life) and i watched you create all of your shame i know of a place that can save you from the things you fear no one will hear the things you say i know the things that you need i wont be the one to pull you will you find your way back home when everything you know is gone tell me im the one who missed you here what have i become i try so hard just to forget before the crowd of a silent mouth like air in a dream of drowning youll find yourself inside this moment and confess that your at war with what keeps you breathing your holding your thoughts back to keep you from speaking the words you know you cant mean in the end if this is what you want then this is what youll get i watched you fall to your knees as the waves came tumbling down crashing upon this wreckless abandoned hope that you painted inside of this life you live
