I'm watching the sky turn from black to the grey and this is the end i know we're not afraid surrender your hands its to late to let go we're still breathing, dont stop breathing the ground is falling under my feet we're still around here we're fading with time there's no fear open your eyes we're standing still now we're going nowhere its not to late to crawl its not to late reach the end ill meet you there in a world that never let you in in a world where you found grace i watched the water pull you in

(as it carries you away)

i know you wont let fall on my own there's no reason reason to abandon here open your eyes and witness the power of a place thats lost control his creation at its finest its what we call our home my life passes by as the sky starts to fade if this is the end i know im not afraid the meaning of this is becoming so clear prepare for the worst this is going to be hell i know you wont be there i fall alone tell me why i am still standing here
