Let's write the songs that they want
I thought they'd love us but they don't, they don't

With tails stuck between our legs
We'll find a home made of regret
We'll stay shipwrecked and sinking
What a terrible thought to be thinking

You were with us but you left these thoughts in your head
We're not who we're supposed to be
With all the symptoms of the sickness we have seen
Are you better off leaving?

Tough words held behind my teeth
Pleading that they'd be set free but they're empty
That's what some always will want
A game on who's best with their tongues
That are faceless and groundless

You were with us but you left these thoughts in your
We're not who we're supposed to be
With all the symptoms of the sickness we have seen
Are you better off leaving?

With every song that you sing it stores to the heart
And when you fly, you'll fall then a new one will start
My eyes burn with hope that you hear what you say
If this was just for today then we never could care

And the music it makes, my feet move too
It's the same as the music that's inside of you
The truth is that when you can see past yourself
Your song is the same as everyone else

Let's write the songs that they want
I thought they'd love us but they don't

You were with us but you left these thoughts in your

We're not who we're supposed to be
With all the symptoms of the sickness we have seen
You're better off leaving
