"Not just any insane asylum," she exclaimed indignantly, as though I had offended her. "Though you certainly do not deserve it, you are a very lucky girl indeed, for you have been assigned a bed in the most progressively innovative, the most morally experimental, the most, ah, the most ingeniously directed medical institution for the mentally ill, lead by my own dear son, Dr. Montmorency Stockhill. You, unworthy child, are now an inmate of The Asylum For Wayward Victorian-"

What have I got That makes you want to love me? Is it my body? Someone I might be? Something inside me?

You'd better tell me Tell me It's really up to you Have you got the time to find out Who I really am?

What does it take To get inside of your mind? Give me a break And take a chance For the very first time

You'd better tell me Tell me It's really up to you Have you got the time to find out Who I really am?

Something inside me What have I got
That makes you want to love me?
Is it my body?
Someone I might be?
Something inside me?

You'd better tell me Tell me It's really up to you Have you got the time to find out Who I really am?
